OUR SCHOOLS

Glendale Well Supplied with Buildings and Teachers—The Latter Rank High for Scholarship and Proficiency—Good Work Being Accomplished

Prof. G. U. Moyses, the principal of this school, is thoroughly imbued with the school spirit and is in sympathy with the life of the young people for whom he sets a high standard of attainment. Prof. Moyses has been president of the Los Angeles County Board of Education and for two years has been a member of this organization chairman of the committee on Teachers' Reading Course. Prof. Moyses is chairman of the Mathematical section of the Teachers' Institute of the city and county of Los Angeles, to be held in Los Angeles in December. He holds the degree of A. B. from the University of California and has done post graduate work at that institution. As principal of the Glendale Union High School, which position he has held continuously for eight years, he has the esteem of the community.

Prof. Harry L. Howe, vice principal and instructor in history and director of athletics, holds the degree of B. S. from Albion college, has had five years experience as high school principal and served four years on a Michigan board of Teachers' Examiners. Mr. Howe traveled extensively through England, France, Germany, Italy, Switzerland, Belgium and Bavaria studying these countries from a historical standpoint and seeing the Passion Play at Oberammergau. Mr. Howe is active and enthusiastic, a boy with the boys, while inspiring respect and confidence by his manly character and well-stored mind. Mr. Howe was one of the two instructors employed at the Los Angeles Y. M. C. A. at the recent summer school.

Mr. C. L. Gates, instructor in the commercial department, has had a comprehensive education, having studied in the Pennsylvania College, Valparaiso University and Heald's Business College. Mr. Gates was for four years principal of the Sherman Institute at Riverside, and has had wide experience in teaching in public and Indian schools, to which latter work he attaches much importance.

Miss Ethel Hume Flood, instructor in Latin and German holds the degrees of A. B. and M. A. from the University of California and attended the recent summer school of that institution. After teaching in the Glendale Union High School Miss Flood obtained a year's leave of absence traveling on the continent and visiting England, Scotland and Ireland. Nine months spent in Germany especially perfected her knowledge of that language. While in Italy she familiarized herself with the subjects co-related with the Latin language, which she is finely equipped to teach.

Miss Margaret Knepper, instructor in English, received the degree of Bachelor of Arts from the University of Idaho, Master of Arts from the University of California, and has had one year's graduate work at Yale and two terms specializing in English at Oxford, England, during a year and a half spent abroad in study and travel. Miss Knepper has had several years experience in teaching her chosen subject of English, in which she is highly efficient.

Miss Sarah McLean, instructor in English and Physical Culture for Girls, after receiving her degree of Bachelor of Arts as the youngest person ever graduated from the University of California, took a business course at the San Francisco Business College and spent the recent summer in Cambridge, where she took special gymnasium work at Harvard. Miss McLean's work in teaching languages has been duly accredited by the University of California and she gives great importance to the gymnasium work for girls in symmetrically building up and strengthening the whole physique.

Miss Bessie L. Field, one of the new teachers this year, after receiving the degree of Bachelor of Arts from Occidental College, spent a year and a half doing graduate work at the University of California. As instructor in chemistry and physics she is proving most acceptable.

Miss Jessie A. Moore, instructor of chemistry and physics, holds the degree of Bachelor of Arts from the Leland Stanford University, where she was the first girl to be chosen as assistant in the chemical laboratory of that institution. Miss Moore later took graduate work at Stanford, and special work at Columbia University summer school of 1909. Miss Moore's regular and special training and experience in teaching excellently qualify her for her work.

Miss Florence N. Magowan holds the degree of A. B. from the University of Iowa and that of Master of Arts was conferred upon her by the University of California, where she also took post graduate work during the recent summer, where her original research was given credit in the highest terms and given credit in his investigations by Prof. Oosterhout of the University. Miss Magowan has been recommended by the faculty of this institution to positions which few attain and some of her scientific work has been received an authoritative and published in the Botanical Gazette of Chicago.

Miss Belle N. Hall, instructor in drawing, was educated in the State University of Iowa and the Chicago Art School. Last year Miss Hall took special work, mostly designing with Mr. Clough of the New York Art School, and formerly president of the New York Art League, of which Miss Hall was a working member. During the summer Miss Hall visited the Chicago Art Studios and studied art work there. Outside of her school work Miss Hall has prepared architectural and mechanical drawings for the California City building, Christ Church, the Edison Electrical Building, residences, etc. This includes preparing plans and specifications, including drawings of every stone in a building, giving dimensions and full size drawings of carvings thereon. This training must tend largely towards accuracy and thoroughness in teaching.

Mrs. D. L. Gibson, instructor of music, has 140 pupils in her classes of history of music, harmony, girls' and boys' glee clubs, mandolin club and orchestra. Mrs. Gibson has made an extended study of the piano, having been a pupil of Emil Liebling of Chicago, and the Bohemian pianist Otto Kar Malek, who was a pupil of Leschellsky and who toured this country with Kubelik. Mrs. Gibson studied voice and chorus directing with Mr. Charles Gear of St. Louis and to familiarize herself with the system of music taught in the Los Angeles public schools she studied with the director, Kathryn Stone. Mrs. Gibson has had years of experience as instructor of music in public schools and private institutions.

GRAMMAR SCHOOLS

Much of the success of the Fourth and Sixth street schools is due to the interest displayed in all the affairs pertaining to them by the trustees, Mr. R. A. Blackburn, Mr. G. E. Williams and Mr. H. G. Dornay. It is impossible to mention the many splendid characteristics of these schools, but of special interest are the libraries of 1500 volumes in the Fourth street school and 275 books in the Sixth street school, which early foster a love of good literature and the habit and ability to consult books of reference. As the construction and equipment of Glendale's schools has been written heretofore, this article aims chiefly to speak of the instructors in the schools.

The Teachers.

Mrs. Mary Ogden Ryan, principal of the Fourth street school, is a woman of splendid intellect and integrity of character, whose influence in the school room is true and strong. Special training thoroughly qualifies her for her work and her record of having taught continuously in this valley for thirteen years, during which time she has won a high place in public esteem, is a telling recommendation. Mrs. Ryan attaches much importance to those things which alleviate and ennoble character and build up a good physique. The library of nearly two thousand volumes is being gradually enlarged, more pictures and works of art, of which there is already a good collection of representative masterpieces, are to be added, and the play ground is to be more fully equipped. Mrs. Ryan is ably assisted by the following competent teachers chosen principally for superior qualifications along special lines: Miss Frances Hendershot, Miss Annie McIntyre, Miss Dora Shultz, Miss Serena Christensen and Miss L. Paul.

THE SIXTH STREET SCHOOL

has made a rapid increase in numbers since its completion and occupancy last January. Miss Ida M. Waite, the principal, stands for all in learning and symmetrical development that is endorsed by foremost educators. This lady, possessed of a wise head and loving heart, appeals to the better natures of children, guiding them easily and naturally to noble lives. Excellent educational advantages have been hers, and her normal training was taken largely under Mrs. Ella Flagg Young, now superintendent of Chicago schools.

A valuable painting and cartoon, of recognized merit, presented by the Lake View Woman's Club of Chicago in recognition of Miss Waite's club work in influencing art in the Chicago schools, adorns the school building walls, while there are also throughout the building twenty-one fine European photographs, reproductions of paintings artistically framed and are the gift of Mrs. C. E. Assel, sister of the principal. Miss Waite is assisted by the following teachers, each of whom possesses special qualifications: Miss Lois E. Hatch, Miss Maude C. Howlett, Mrs. George Larkey. As special teacher of music and art in the Fourth and Sixth street schools Mrs. Mary Anderson stands high in public esteem and as a graduate of the Chicago Art School and Chicago Conservatory of Music is well fitted for her work.

WEST GLENDALE SCHOOL.

In this connection may properly be mentioned the West Glendale school, the patrons and pupils of which and of the Glendale schools are so intimately associated and co-related in their interests and progress. Mrs. Cora Taylor, principal of this school, has been identified with the growth of Glendale in many ways for years, and her splendid capacity is well known. She is a graduate of San Jose Normal school and in her school work enters into the true spirit of child unfoldment. Special features of this school are the large playrooms in the basement and the best equipped playground in the county outside of Los Angeles. Mrs. Taylor has the following assistants: Nellie T. Miller, Sadie Yarnell, Hulda Erickson and Mrs. Gibson as special teacher of music.

ADVENTIST SCHOOL.

The Adventist School, under the supervision of this denomination, is taught by Miss Ernestine Topliff, a graduate of Pasadena High School and later of Fernando College. As is required of all teachers of this sect, Miss Topliff has a full and comprehensive Bible training and a thorough knowledge of domestic science and hygiene. Domestic science, manual training, gymnasium work and school gardens all have their suitable places in the school course and with it give a well-balanced education in the broadest sense. As the policy of all schools of this denomination, the missionary spirit dominates all grades from the kindergarten and first grades through the higher, and Bible study and history, which is a part of the daily work in all grades, is made vital and interesting by being correlated with the study of history and geography.

KINDERGARTEN.

In a progressive community such as Glendale, one would expect to find an institution expressing the system of the great philosopher, Frederick Froebel, whose "Education of Man" is widely used among educators as a text book and it is a matter of congratulation that the kindergarten system so universally accepted by foremost representatives of learning as the foundation education, may be enumerated as a part of the assets and advantages of this city.

Contrary to the superficial estimate of this system, which to many simply means that the children have a "nice time singing and playing and working" this is the deepest philosophical educational system unfolded to the world and which requires years of study for its proper mastery.

Mrs. Nanno Woods, who conducts the private kindergarten in Glendale, was trained for this work in Europe and to become familiar with American methods and adaptations spent some time in studying the system in Los Angeles. This lady has the true conception of Froebelian principles of developing and unfolding the threefold nature of the child by wisely and logically directed activities.

Parent-Teachers' Association.

The Parent-Teachers' Association, connected with all the Grammar schools, at which vital questions are discussed, are calculated to foster a spirit of understanding and co-operation and are setting a higher standard of living and learning, good results from which are becoming apparent.

THE NEWS called attention some time ago to the demand for country board with home accommodations. "GOOD-NIGHT, DEAR."

Carrie Mae, beloved daughter of Dr. M. W. and Josephine Cunningham of Amarillo, Texas, passed to the life beyond on Sunday morning at eight o'clock at the Clara Barton hospital. Funeral services were held at three o'clock Tuesday afternoon in Immanuel Presbyterian church, by Rev. Hugh K. Walker. Interment at Forest Lawn, near her loved Glendale. Here she had lived the past year so happily with her loved ones, in the I. McMillan homestead in the foothills. All who came in contact with her sweet personality and inborn Southern courtesy learned to love her dearly. Her influence was felt wherever she was, at school, at the homes of her friends, but most of all in her own home where she watched with increasing solicitude over the bedside of her mother, who has been ill for several months.

It was for the dear mother's sake the family moved this fall into Los Angeles. There Carrie entered the Westlake school and was president of her class. She was a member of a large class in Immanuel Sunday school where she was very popular in a quiet way. She was seventeen on the fifth of last June. Born on Sunday, it seemed that after such a sweet life she passed on the Sabbath day. No tribute seems too great for her many friends to pay. She deserved all that was said of her, and in the years to come, her memory will prove a sweet influence toward the higher expression of life. To know her was to praise and love her. A sweet singer, she was very fond of one of the new songs, "Good Night, Dear," and to those who have heard her sing it so many times, some of the words seem very appropriate. She leaves a father, mother, her brother, Milton, and two small sisters, Nina and Norma.

MUSICAL EVENING AND BIRTHDAY.

A very enjoyable affair was the party given by Mrs. Hurtt at her home on Third street, Wednesday evening, as a surprise to Dr. Hurtt and in honor of his birthday.

Music was the especial feature of the evening, and piano solos were given by Mrs. Hurtt, Miss Ina Whitaker and Mr. Charles Anderson, also several delightful baritone selections from Mr. Robertson. A guessing contest followed, handsome prizes being awarded the winners, Miss Whitaker and Mr. Frank.

A dainty supper was served in the pretty dining room and a fine big birthday cake on which twenty-one candles blazed occupied a prominent position. The table was beautifully decorated with flowers and candleabra, the latter 150 years old. Dr. Hurtt adorned one end of the table, while his sister, Mrs. Bundy, gracefully served the ice cream at the other.

Mr. Coker and Mr. Wells responded ably to the toast "When We Were Twenty-one," and Mr. Hurtt was showered with congratulations by the guests, who one and all voted him a jolly good fellow, and Mrs. Hurtt a most charming and delightful hostess. Those present were Mrs. Bundy, Mrs. Frank, Mr. and Mrs. Harry Coker, Miss Anderson, Miss Alice Frank, Miss Harrison, Miss Frances Eyre and Miss Ina Whitaker, Messrs. MRS. HUNT ENTERTAINS.

Saturday evening of last week, Mrs. Susie J. Hunt and Dr. D. W. Hunt entertained a few friends in honor of the wedding anniversary of Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Ward. The date also happened to be that of Mrs. Hunt's birthday, so that the affair was a double ender and enjoyed in proportion. Cards served in part as a medium of sociability and the refreshments were up to the high standard previously set by the hostess. It should be clearly understood that the affair was not a "smoker," notwithstanding the disagreeable conduct of the stove upon the occasion. The guests were: Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Ward, Mr. and Mrs. S. W. Johnson, Mrs. Helen Campbell, Mrs. Reharr.

Glendale, Cal., November 20, 1909

It looks to an outsider as if Mrs. Stetson of the New York "Scientist" church, after her twenty-hour session in Boston, should know something about the "third degree."

The labor unions in San Francisco have compelled the city to pay $5.00 and $3.50 per day to street sweepers and sprinklers on the public streets. Now the merchants' association of that city is endeavoring to have their pay reduced to $3.50 in the hope that the city may get more work for the money. With Mr. McCarthy at the helm, however, the prospect is that the movement will not be successful.

The police commission of Los Angeles and Chief of Police Dishman deserve commendation for ordering that the custom of paying off workmen in saloons, be hereafter prohibited. The practice is one that is little short of criminal. The workmen were paid in checks and the man behind the bar stood ready to cash them upon presentation, the men, of course, feeling under compulsion to buy more or less of the accommodating merchant's "goods."

TAXES.

The county tax rate of 90 cents is apportioned as follows: education .339; general state purposes .18; county purposes .217; county hospital and farm .065; exposition purposes .002; for county buildings and real estate .109; good roads .008. Special school tax rates in this section are as follows: Glendale .83; West Glendale .83; Tropic .76; Eagle Rock .90; Burbank .80.

The Glendale city tax rate is $1.24. It should be borne in mind in regard to the latter item that incorporated cities are exempt from a rate of 55 cents levied for road purposes in addition to the regular 90 cent rate. So that the increased tax rate which represents the amount paid for the advantages of local government is only 81 cents on the $100 of valuation. We notice that East Hollywood has a special tax for lighting purposes alone of 64 cents. In Tropic, the total county tax rate is 90 cents, plus 55 cents, plus 76 cents, a total of $2.21. In West Glendale it is 90 cents plus 83 cents plus 55 cents, a total rate of $2.28.

THE COUNTRY EDITOR.

We are always glad to commend a good thing said by any one whom we have taken occasion to criticize, and the words of Mr. W. J. Bryan quoted elsewhere in regard to the country newspaper, meet with our hearty approval. We do not claim for the country newspaper man any unusual virtue, but as Mr. Bryan points out, he is certainly more often able to maintain an independent attitude than is his city contemporary. This is perhaps simply owing to the fact that he is not exposed to similar temptations. As the distinguished gentleman says, "Great dailies are becoming more and more business enterprises rather than exponents of opinion." It is a lamentable fact that the alleged principles of many of these large and financially successful publications, are manufactured in the business office and made to please the desires of advertising patrons. In matters political the free and independent newspaper is hard to find. Even in the most sincere reform movements the journalistic organs become so biased in their anxiety to serve the cause that is behind them, that they slop over on the other side and stand for many things and persons unworthy of support. A discriminating public can do much to encourage a local newspaper and if the patrons of a paper of this kind appreciate an attempt on the part of an editor to be thoroughly independent and honest, they should not expect him to support everything which to them may seem of prime importance in morals or politics.

THIRD MONDAY AT THE COUNTRY CLUB.

A Day to Be Remembered.

Everyone who has attended a third Monday's performance at the Country Club knows that it is always something worth while. Frequently the program is instructive in a high degree and then again it may happen to be a mirth-provoker of a wholesome and thoroughly successful kind and the program rendered last Monday afternoon was a happy combination of both. Mrs. C. H. Temple was the hostess of the occasion and being a Southern woman it was only natural and proper that it should be a "Southern day," and she was fortunate in having for her assistants ladies who were more or less familiar with things as they are "Way Down in Tennessee" and elsewhere in the land of cotton, possums and persimmons. The rooms were beautifully and appropriately decorated; great chrysanthemums, single and en masse, adorned the walls and were placed here and there in well-arranged bouquets. In the dining room autumn leaves suggestive of the season displayed the richness of their coloring on curtains and tables and adorned the napery where painter's brush had laid them. Ebony-hued musicians, played softly and sweetly the airs of the Sunny South and sang the familiar "Old Kentucky Home," "Swanee River," camp meeting tunes and lullabys. Miss Stanton of Los Angeles recited in a manner that left nothing to be desired but "more." Mrs. Temple and Miss Booth also added to the pleasure of the audience by readings, and Miss Hare of Eagle Rock and Miss Pirtle sang. Half a dozen maids and matrons, transformed for the occasion by special decree and burnt cork into bewitching "colored ladies," assisted the hostess in the entertainment. Their make-up and acting was high-class vaudevillean and the audience was convulsed with laughter by their clever representations. Two of them danced, one told fortunes and all acted as waiters about the tables where were served with true Southern prodigality, hot biscuit, chicken salad and coffee. The ladies who assisted the hostess in the guise of "ladies of color," were Mrs. L. C. Brand, Mrs. V. Price Brown, Mrs. C. O. Pulliam, Miss Boothie, Mrs. Hinean and the Misses Pulliam.

Altogether it was a performance that will be remembered long with delight by those who were present. The December Monday will be the last entertainment programmed by the present board of directors.

Osborne, Mrs. Netherery, Mrs. Worzenberg, Mrs. Newcomb, Mrs. A. McIntyre, Mrs. Harry Howe, Mrs. J. G. Bunn, Mrs. A. Glassell, Miss Ruth Bryant.

THE NEW PRIMARY LAW IN LOS ANGELES.

Every person interested in political matters and present day problems of civil government, and this should apply to every citizen, naturally finds the situation in Los Angeles of more than ordinary interest. Now that the first election under the new law has taken place, it is natural and proper that we should try to analyze the results in order to answer the question, "has the new law proved good?" The proponents of the measure declare with well-simulated enthusiasm that it has, and as evidence point to the large vote cast as compared with former primary elections and to the substantial plurality polled for their principal candidate. While not opposing the direct primary law, this paper has consistently maintained that it is unnecessary, because the people already possessed in the old party convention system adequate means to exercise full and complete political control if they would only perform their political duty! The political rings and combinations that have made our democratic government a farce have only been made possible by the failure of the majority of the voters to perform intelligently and conscientiously their political duty and when the minority rules it always has been due to this one cause. Let us look at the arguments advanced to prove the new law a success. It is claimed that a larger percentage of voters than ever before in Los Angeles took part in the primary election. Probably this is true; but never before in Los Angeles has a particular issue been kept before the people for so long a time, and by such a variety of effective means. Never before has such a sum of money been spent in a primary election campaign, and quite probably it will be a good while before another primary or so many candidates will be so well advertised. It has always been possible under the convention system to achieve this same result. As for its making possible the nomination of good men, we fail to see any ground for such a claim. Half of the money spent and the exertions made by the Good Government League, would have enabled it to dominate any convention that it might have chosen to control and the nomination of Alexander could have been made without any change in the political machinery. The two candidates for the nomination for council who received the highest number of votes were Judge Works and Barney Healy, light and darkness, saint and sinner, or any other two contrary things that your fancy chooses. The fact seems to be that in choosing nine men from a list of seventy or so, the voter selected the nine names that he had heard mentioned, those that were best advertised; merit seems to have had little to do with his choice. The party convention system had one merit which is lacking in the new plan, the party had to bear the odium of its bad candidates, was in fact a pledge for them. Under the present law, every candidate stands upon his own merits or demerits solely, nobody vouches for him, he is taken as an untried factor in the game. He is nominated and if he spends money more freely or more judiciously than his opponent he will be elected. Notwithstanding all this the direct primary law appeals for the present at least to a popular fancy and may work in some mysterious way temporary benefit. But in the meantime a party that thinks itself strong enough to nominate a ticket (as the Republican party has just done in Los Angeles) will do so and in the end the result will just be the same as before.

SENATOR LAFOLLETTE NOT THE FIRST PROPHET OF EVIL.

We are in full sympathy with Senator LaFollette in his fight against the influences which exert a malignant control over legislation whether in California or in Washington. He does not need to submit to us any proof to substantiate his assertion that in California the Southern Pacific has for years controlled the legislature in regard to all measures in which it had an interest, save only when on a few rare occasions the people have been aroused to a realizing sense of a particular menace and have exercised the power which is always theirs to avert the threatened danger to the common interest. The world loves a fighter fully as well as it does a lover, and LaFollette is personified pugacity done up in a small bundle. But we are not among those enthusiastic admirers of his who believe that he might properly aspire to the highest office in the gift of the people. Genuine reform and business enterprise do not mix well in the same personality and Mr. LaFollette cheapens himself infinitely by winding up his fervent appeal to civic virtue by an equally fervent plea for his little one dollar a year paper. We do not doubt his sincerity and can therefore only assume that he believes so thoroughly in himself and his mission as he sees it, that he feels quite sure that he is the only possible political savior of his unhappy country! True greatness is inconsistent with any such idea and no man need aspire to the presidency who lacks so conspicuously the attributes of dignity and modesty. William J. Bryan has a proper appreciation of the duties and a similar idea of his importance to the country, which his countrymen failed to support, but we have never heard that he sacrificed a peroration for a subscription to the Commoner.

Senator LaFollette is considerable of an alarmist. We refuse to believe that a great crash will occur within ten years' time which will bring general and promiscuous ruin throughout the world of industry and finance. Among interesting quotations from the words of famous writers and statesmen with which Mr. LaFollette prefaces his argument he lays especial stress upon the report of De Toqueville who visited America in 1835 and reported in his famous book on Democracy which was published soon afterwards, that he had found here a government administered entirely in the interest of the people. Mr. LaFollette makes the point that up to that time everything was going on in our government as it should and that in fact only after the creation of that legal body known as the corporation, began the looting of the people by the special interests! Now note these words: "A power has risen up in the government greater than the people themselves, consisting of many and various and powerful interests, combined into one mass and held together by the cohesive power of the vast surplus in the banks."

If we should report the above as having been uttered by Senator LaFollette in November, 1909, no one who heard his speech Saturday night in Los Angeles would question its accuracy. The whole spirit and substance of the quotation is in exact harmony with Mr. LaFollette's talk of two hours and a half, but—the above words were uttered by John C. Calhoun in 1836, one year after De Toqueville's visit! So it seems that there were alarmists even in that distant day and generation, as there have been ever since.

Instead of everything being right in the government "for seventy years after it was founded," as Senator LaFollette declares upon the authority of De Toqueville, there has been no period in its history from the time the constitution was adopted to the time of LaFollette, that there were not prophets of evil who were looked upon by many of their contemporaries as inspired in their utterances! We live upon a round earth and we travel in circles; history is constantly repeating itself and the world today is peopled in part by honest pessimists who delight in visions of evil to come, but although the day of evil may sometime dawn upon an unhappy world, we see no sign of its imminent advent. In the words of Garfield, "God rules and the government at Washington still lives."

SOCIALISM.

Editor GLENDALE NEWS:

Would you allow me to call the attention of those who have not read Turner's article now appearing in the American Magazine on "Barbarous Mexico." Harriet Beecher Stowe in her famous Uncle Tom's Cabin never portrayed anything more heartrending than scenes Turner describes as now taking place right at our door in Mexico. God! what a picture is presented to us. Here we have a Christian president dispossessing a whole nation of their lands and selling them into slavery. And again a Christian king (forgive the blasphemy) chopping off the hands and feet to bring in the stipulated amount of rubber. To what extent will not the exploiters of labor go to enrich themselves and with this blood money they will build churches in which to mock God. And the public would be ignorant of these diabolical outrages against humanity if it were left to those who profess to be Christian ministers to enlighten them. While they regale their congregations with such subjects as why the working class do not come to church, or even dispute as to who has the best creed or who is getting the largest following. There was a time when the prophets of God cried out mightily against the sins of the people. Men need and expect leaders and we believe if ministers would do their duty such inhuman butchers would be swept from power. R. GILHOUSEN.

Editor GLENDALE NEWS:

In a late issue of the GLENDALE NEWS a writer urged the citizens of Glendale to join the board of trade and help boost Glendale. I would suggest as one of the best ways of boosting our burg would be to get the railroad fare reduced to a reasonable charge. Last summer while in Portland, Oregon, I rode out eight miles to a town called Lents. It has three thousand inhabitants and three years ago it was a hazel brush pasture. The fare was a nickel. Here we are paying three times as much for one mile less of distance, and they are not running the Oregon road for charity. No wonder that H. E. Huntington can spend one million for tapestries for a single room in his Pasadena mansion. He is taxing the citizens of Glendale for a considerable part of it. R. GILHOUSEN.

A PLEASANT EVENING AT THE GLENDALE SANITARIUM.

The editor and his wife enjoyed the privilege recently of spending an evening at the Glendale Sanitarium, in company with some other Glendale people. It was something of a revelation, introducing the visitors as it did to the inner workings and everyday life of that admirable institution. Some of the visitors during the afternoon were made acquainted in a practical manner (not as onlookers only) with the thorough and up-to-date system of baths, steam, electrical and otherwise, with which the sanitarium is well supplied and vouch for the rejuvenating effects produced by even the one treatment. The bill of fare partaken of at supper lacked nothing in the way of appetizing allurements, although coffee, strong condiments and meats were conspicuous, and agreeably so, by their absence. There is probably a limitation to the number of attractive dishes that can be served without calling upon the articles barred as above, but the guests failed to find the limitation and could sample only a small proportion of the viands offered. According to the usual custom, such of the inmates and guests as desired to do so, adjourned shortly after supper to the parlor where there was a short religious service of prayer, Bible reading and song. This was followed by a half hour spent in the gymnasium, where all joined under the leadership of the young lady teacher of callisthenics in marching and dumb-bell practice, sufficient to set the blood healthily in motion, but stopping short of fatigue.

The remainder of the evening was devoted to sociability and music, both instrumental and vocal, contributed by Mrs. Wessels, Mrs. MacMullin and Master Wessels.

The manager of the sanitarium would be glad to have Glendale people show their interest in the institution by more frequent visits and participation in such exercises as are briefly described above. Visitors will always be cordially received and those fortunate enough to be present on this occasion can vouch for the delightful spirit of hospitality shown to the outsider.

HOO-DOO?

It seems it cannot be helped, but they are at it again. Two by two they silently gathered about an open fire on Saturday night at a house on the edge of the town. Prof. and Mrs. Alphonso Tower extended the cold hand of good fellowship. A false alarm had been placed out on the front "stoop" but the Hoo-Doos knew by the wind that blew from behind the pictures that they had found the right place. A vote was carried to defer an important initiation, and whilst occupied with coffee and a salad which shall be nameless were discussed, as was also the previous meeting which had been worried through at the domny domicile "on the avano." There eligibles were turned down with surprising, if not elegant rapidity. Mr. and Mrs. John Hunchburger will be responsible for what transpires at the next gathering in their new home on Central and Fourth, where a sufficient amount of shudders and creeps have been stored for the auspicious occasion.

SUGGESTIVE QUESTIONS ON THE SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

By Rev. Dr. Linscott for the International Newspaper Bible Study Club.

Nov. 21st, 1909.

(Copyright, 1909, by Rev. T. S. Linscott, D.D.) Paul's Story of His Life. II Cor. xi:21 to xii:10.

Golden Text—He said unto me, My grace is sufficient for thee; for my strength is made perfect in weakness. II Cor. xii:9.

Verse 21—Do you know any person in all history who had a better right to boldly tell of his sufferings than Paul?

Verses 22-23—Is there any lack of modesty, or good taste, in Paul, or any other true man, giving a full account of his qualifications and his sufferings for Christ's cause?

What advantage is it to be born of good stock?

What advantage was it to Paul that he was a Hebrew, an Israelite and of the seed of Abraham?

Is there any higher privilege, or greater honor than to have labored and suffered, for the cause of Christ, which is the cause of humanity?

Does a true ministry, then and now, always imply much suffering and self denial?

Verses 24-27—What is the best word picture you can give, of the noble hero who, at the expense of life-long and unparalleled suffering, gave himself up to the service of others? (This question must be answered in writing by members of the club.)

Read until the story of this bitter and prolonged suffering is burned into your memory, and then read the story of Paul's great work and of the wonderful love and grace of God to him, and then think of the sumptuous lives of the chief priests who were, in great measure, responsible for Paul's suffering, and then say, after all, which got the more aggregate joy out of life, Paul or they?

How many of these cruel sufferings, to which Paul here refers, are mentioned elsewhere in the New Testament? Give chapter and verse. (See Acts ix:24-25; xiv:19; xvi:22 et seq.)

Verses 28-33—Is Paul an exception, or is it the duty of all of us to have a great care for all the churches, and to be in sympathy with everybody, weeping with those who weep, and rejoicing with those who rejoice?

Which is the greater man, the one who excels in education, in science, in oratory, in statesmanship; or the one who excels in his love for the churches, for the poor, for sinners and in a heart that sympathizes with all mankind?

Chapter xii:1-6—What is the logical or scientific value of Paul's experience of heaven?

What is the only real proof of God, of immortality and of the wisdom of the spiritual life?

Is it probable, or possible, that persons to-day may have similar experience of the unseen world as Paul?

Verses 7-10—What was Paul's "thorn in the flesh"?

What is the greatest "thorn in the flesh" that strong and healthy spiritual men have to-day?

Lesson for Sunday, Nov. 28th, 1909. Paul on Self Denial. (World's Temperance Lesson), Rom. xiv:10-21.

She Almost Remembered. Little Josephine, aged four, was intently studying the pictures in a book and seemed very much interested in a picture of Charles Dickens.

Taking the book to her mother, she inquired who it was.

"That is Dickens, dear," said her mother.

The picture was wonderfully fascinating to the little girl, and when her big sister came from college in the evening she ran and got the book, turned to the picture and said:

Her sister replied, "No, dear, that is Mr. Dickens."

"Well," said Josephine, "I knew it was some kind of a swear word."—Delineator.

Concrete Church. "Colonel, we want a contribution from you to help build a mission church."

"Judge, you know well enough that, while I am in sympathy with morality and religion, I don't believe in churches in the abstract, and—"

"Neither do I, colonel. We're going to build this one of concrete."—Seattle Post-Intelligencer.

Changed Her Mind. Nearsighted Lady—The boy who is trying to tie that tin can to that poor dog's tail ought to be thrashed within an inch of his life—the horrid little brute! Maid—It's your boy, mum. Nearsighted Lady—My boy? Maid—Yes, mum. Nearsighted Lady—Tell him if he'll stop I'll give him some cake.—Christian Advocate.

A Frank Confession. Watchmaker—Your watch seems to be erratic. Have you had it near a powerful magnet? Customer (confused)—Why, I was carriage riding last evening with Miss Bright—Jewelers' Circular.

STAGECOACH ROBBERS.

How the Express Companies Deal With Old Time Highwaymen.

It was the treasure box of the Wells-Fargo company which transported practically all the gold and silver from the mining camps that was the special object of the old time stagecoach highwayman. A shrewd band of robbers would not hold up a stage unless they had good reason to think it carried a large shipment of gold, and they used every means to find out when these shipments would be made. The company, on the other hand, tried to deceive and trap them, and there was a war of wits as well as weapons. A favorite method of the company when their stages had been repeatedly robbed by some band whose success showed they had inside information as to the time of shipment was to let a rumor leak out that on a certain day a large amount of gold dust would be secretly sent out by special stage. This, of course, would reach the ears of some of the band and a robbery be duly organized. A spy would see a number of heavy boxes placed aboard and report all well. When the highwaymen halted the stage the driver and guard would meekly give up and crawl to the ground. Then just when the bands had grown careless from easy success there poured from the looped coach a deadly fire that at such short range wiped out the entire gang at the first volley, for the coach was a decoy, filled not with gold, but with men expert with the rifle. In 1806 three bands were thus blown to perdition on the old stage line between Virginia City, Nev., and Sacramento.—Washington Post.

THE STORE BUYER.

His Task of Selecting "Good Sellers" Is a Hard One.

Whoever has had difficulty in deciding which of two or more articles on a counter he will purchase may be able to appreciate the task which confronts the buyer of a stock of merchandise, says a writer in Collier's. The numbers of varieties offered for selection are almost beyond belief. In the toy department of a large wholesale house the following figures were obtained in regard to the goods actually being shown at one time in the sample rooms:

Magic lanterns, 250 varieties; books, 300 varieties; horns, 1,000 varieties; Christmas tree ornaments, 2,000 varieties; dolls, 12,000 varieties.

In gathering this assortment of Christmas tree ornaments it was necessary to deal with 750 manufacturers throughout Europe, and the selection of 2,000 samples represents only a fraction of the samples submitted by manufacturers.

When it is considered that almost every person uses dishes at three meals a day and that the prices of plates may range from a few cents each to $1,000 or more a set, it is not surprising to learn that the same wholesaler would display in his sample rooms over 250,000 varieties of articles in china.

The buyer has within such ranges of variety opportunity to "make or break" the patronage of a store by the wisdom he uses in making his selections.

Kettledrum a Perfect Instrument. The kettledrum, Gabriel Cleather contended, was perfectly competent to produce atmosphere as well as rhythm. Even to tune the instrument three things were required—a perfect musical ear, a fine sense of touch and five years' experience. After playing over a kettledrum melody written eighty years ago from Meyerbeer's "Robert le Diable," Mr. Cleather continued, "I venture to say that outside of the musical profession not one person in a hundred of those who listen to an orchestra in England today knows that timpani have notes and can give out a melody." No instrument, he added, had a greater range of power than the kettledrum, for none could be played more softly and none had greater penetrating power.—London Standard.

A German Memorial to Napoleon. It will come as news to most persons that there exists in Germany a monument to Napoleon I. This curiosity is to be found about eleven miles from Alzeny, in the grand duchy of Hesse. The monument is situated near the Vorholz hunting lodge, at the summit of a wooded hill, and the spot is known as Napoleon's garden. It is a dwarfed pyramid of three sides, rather more than three feet in length. Upon it stands the inscription, in Latin, French and German, showing that it commemorates the marriage of Napoleon I. to Marie Louise, grand duchess of Austria, on April 1, 1810.—London Globe.

Want Papa One Better. "I love you very much, papa," said five-year-old Willie as he crawled up on his father's knee. "And I love you, too, Willie, when you are good," replied the father. "But, papa," continued the little fellow, "not to be outdone, I love you just the same, even when you ain't no good."

He Was Warned. Mrs. Jones—Did you really expect me to accept you the night you proposed? Mr. Jones—Yes, love. Just before I got to your house I heard a dog howl three times, saw the moon over my left shoulder and walked under a ladder.—Manchester Guardian.

A Light Touch. Wickwire—I like Timmins' stories. He has such a light touch. Stimmins—Yes; that's one thing in Timmins' favor. He rarely strikes one for more than two or three dollars.—Indianapolis Journal.

Choosing a Builder.

The selection of a builder is quite as important a matter in putting up a house as the choice of an architect. Don't choose the cheapest builder merely because he is cheapest. If you accept his bid, find out the reason of the cheapness. Frequently the builder is a man of little means, and often he operates on borrowed capital. Should the builder become bankrupt or fail to pay for his labor or materials the owner, under the mechanics' laws of most states, becomes liable for the builder's debts. This is true even though the owner has paid the builder for his work. In order to obtain his house free and clear in such a case the owner must meet the builder's obligations. The prudent owner will, of course, pay for his house only as it is constructed. Even then it would be a useful caution to make sure that the builder has paid his indebtedness on the house. Payments are usually made the builder when the foundations are done, when the frame is up, when the house is closed, when the plastering is finished and when the completed house is turned over to the owner.—Circle Magazine.

Ancient Castle, Curious Clock.

Rushen castle, Castledown, Isle of Man, is the ancient seat of the kings and lords of Man. The castle is a veritable curiosity both historically and otherwise. The first mention of it dates to the year 1257. It was taken after six months' siege in the year 1315 by Robert the Bruce. The castle is built of limestone and is not a ruin. Until a few years ago it was used as a prison. The town clock seen in Queen Elizabeth in the year 1567. It has only one hand on the dial. This is the hour hand. The minutes are judged by the position of the hand between the hours. The works of this clock are also a curiosity. The weight at the end of the pendulum is a large stone, and it is driven by a rope coiled around a cylinder of wood, with another stone at the end of the rope. The clock is still going after its centuries of service and is still the town clock.—Newcastle (England) Chronicle.

Where She Got the Money.

They were at the circus. The conversation ran to the subject of how they had financed their admission ticket projects. One said she had gathered rags and sold them. Another had helped her brother spade a garden. The third member of the party presented a sickly grin and seemed reluctant about explaining where her half dollar came from. An explanation seemed absolutely necessary.

"Lizette, what yo' git dat half dollar yo' flipped up to de ticket man?" "Nevah yo' mind. Yo' all saw me pay de man, didn't yo'?"

"Sho' nuf we did, but dat ain' no explanation."

"Well, I got de money all right."

"Sho' nuf yo' did. Sho' nuf yo' did."

"Yes, an' et I doan' git a hair dress somewah an' git my ole man's Sabbath shoes from dat pawnshop befo' Satahday evenin' I'm a dejected woman, dat's all."—Indianapolis News.

East Indian Muslim Test.

A Madras physician was buying muslin for a turban in a department store.

"None of this is fine enough," he said. "In the turban I have on there are forty yards. But forty yards of this would give me a head like a saratoga trunk."

"Indian muslin is very, very fine. It must be fine enough to disappear if it is to pass our A1 test. The test is this: The muslin is spread on grass overnight. In the morning, when everything is dew drenched, if the muslin isn't practically identical with the dew gossamer covering the lawn—in other words, if it isn't invisible—it is discarded and must be sold as 'seconds.'"—New Orleans Times-Democrat.

Good Time to Go.

General Joseph B. Johnston, the Confederate commander, used to relate that in the hottest part of one of the early battles of the civil war he felt his coattails pulled. Turning about, he recognized a young man who had been employed in his tobacco factory previous to enlistment.

"Why are you not in your place fighting?" the general demanded angrily.

"Why, I just wanted to tell you that if you don't mind I will take my day off today."

To Sleep Like a Top.

To "sleep like a top" has probably a very different origin from that which appears. "Top" is thought to be a corruption of the French taupe, or mole. This interpretation is far more in accordance with the idea usually conveyed—that of a prolonged, undisturbed sleep like that of a mole in winter rather than the short, enduring so called "sleep" of a top when it revolves on its axis with a gentle, humming sound.

Both Willing.

"He said he'd rather go to jail than pay his divorced wife alimony."

"Did she let him go?"

"Yes; she said she'd rather see him save his money behind the bars than spend it over them."—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

Precoctly.

"Every time the baby looks into my face he smiles," said Mr. Meekton.

"Well," answered his wife, "it may not be exactly polite, but it shows he has a sense of humor."—Exchange.

Hunger or Fame.

"It is a good thing to hunger for fame," remarked the struggling author.

"Yes," assented his friend the artist, "if you don't get the fame you are sure to get the hunger."—Chicago News.

Worse Than His Own.

A gentleman who owns one of the finest estates in the north of England while in his gardens one morning noticed one of the laborers very badly clad and asked him:

"Have you no better clothes than those, Mat?"

"No, in troth, yer honor, worse luck," replied Mat.

"Well, call at the house this evening on your way home," said the gentleman. "I'll leave an old suit of mine with the butler for you."

A few days later when showing a party of visitors through the gardens he was much annoyed to see Mat looking if possible more a scarecrow than ever.

"Why are you still wearing those old clothes, Mat?" he asked.

"Sure, yer honor, they're the best I have," replied Mat.

"But did you not get the suit I left for you the other day?" asked the gentleman.

"Indeed, an' I did, thank yer honor kindly," replied Mat; "but, sure, I had to leave them at home to be mended."—London Tatler.

When Baseball Was an Infant Industry.

It was a crude game, but merry. In theory the pitcher was there only to give the boys a chance to "soak the ball." "First bound" was still out. The unfortunate catcher, handling a heavy, lively ball without mask, glove or protector, stood up near the bat when men were on bases if he had the skill and courage. The early guides recommended him to do so when he could. Had not the pitcher been restricted to an artificial throw scarce a catcher would have lived to tell the tale. Many catchers took everything "on first bounce" and managed at that to prevent much base stealing. Base running also was in its infancy. "Smith," says the Spirit of the Times, "caught a remarkable game, having but five passed balls scored against him." Here and there we get a glimpse which shows how crude it all was, what a matter of hit and miss natural force. In the fifties Dicky Pearce shone without a peer as an infielder. He used to stop grounders with his hand and foot!—Will Irwin in Collier's.

She Did So.

"Always," said papa as he drank his coffee and enjoyed his morning breakfast—"always, children, change the subject when anything unpleasant has been said. It is both wise and polite."

That evening on his return from business he found several of his flower beds despoiled and the tiny imprint of slippered feet silently bearing witness to the small thief.

"Mabel," he said to her, "did you pick my flowers?"

"Papa," said Mabel, "did you see a monkey in the city today? We had a—"

"Never mind that. Did you pick my flowers, Mabel?"

"Papa, what did grandma send me?"

"Mabel, what do you mean? Did you pick my flowers? Answer me, yes or no."

"Yes, papa, I did, but I thought I would change the subject."—London Tit-Bits.

Look After Your Property.

It is a safe rule in this world to look carefully after the details of your own property. Be sure your title deeds are recorded; that your insurance is kept up; that you alone have the key to your strong box in the safety vault. Do not leave your securities with your broker. If he is doing a conservative business he has no need of them. If he isn't you don't want him to handle your property. The wonder is that with all the confidence reposed in financial matters there are so few defalcations. There is no use in making it easy for some one to get your property. In this world it is hard for most persons to acquire anything, and they should be careful to the last degree in seeing that they are fully protected in it.—Philadelphia Inquirer.

Britain's Greatest Precipice.

Writing to the Newcastle Journal in regard to the drowning of three bird catchers at St. Kilda, a correspondent says the wild fowls of St. Kilda find nesting places that enable them to bid defiance to the sportsman and to the most daring of bird catchers. There is, for example, the precipice called Conagher, the same being far and away the greatest precipice in the British Isles, the deepest perpendicular precipice. It rises from the sea level to a clear height of 1,220 feet. Consider that a man might jump from the top of Conagher into the sea without getting a scratch by the way.

Breaking the News.

Marion, who had been taught to report her misdeeds promptly, came to her mother one day, sobbing penitently.

"Mother, I—I broke a brick in the fireplace."

"Well, that is not very hard to remedy. But how on earth did you do it, child?"

"I pounded it with father's watch."—Success Magazine.

Accessories.

"I'm going in for poetry," hisped the sweet young thing.

"Real, heartfelt poetry," thundered the man of letters. "Is only written in a garret."

"Yes; I've heard that. So I've fitted up a beautiful Turkish den in ours."—Washington Herald.

Quite Warm.

"I understand there was a hot time in the Bangs household the other day."

"Yes. When he went home he found his wife simply boiling, and she gave him a roast."—Baltimore American.

Praise a fine day at night—Irish Proverb.

EDITION LIMITED—PURCHASE QUICKLY

A New City a Thousand Years Old.

Budapest, whose front is circled with lights like a crown, whose hills rise dark and feathery above the river, whose parliament buildings run along the bank and are second to none but Westminster—Budapest, bright, flashing, gay, beautiful, modern and rich, ardent and executive, close built and amalgamative, blunder of peoples—is the product of only a few decades, and yet at its last exposition it celebrated its thousandth birthday. Pest, to the right of the river—for the cities are twin and divided by the Danube—Pest dates back to 1200, and Buda was the Ofen of the Romans. Buda climbs up the opposite hill, today magnificently new, but sown round with green crumbling walls that mark the passing of the original founders whose painted galleys came up the Danube from the Black sea. The twentieth century civilization, sharply new and powerful, must for a moment be brushed aside and the Buda of mediaeval times put in its stead.—Marie Van Vorst in Harper's Magazine.

Gathering Cloves.

Cloves are now cultivated in many of the tropical regions of the earth. A clove tree begins to bear at the age of ten years and continues until it reaches the age of seventy-five years. There are two crops a year, one in June and one in December. The tree is an evergreen and grows from forty to fifty feet high, with large oblong leaves and crimson flowers at the end of small branches in clusters of from ten to twenty. The tree belongs to the same botanical order as the guava. The cloves, which are the undeveloped buds, are at first white, then light green and at the time of gathering bright red. Pieces of white cloth are spread under the trees at harvesting time, and the branches are beaten gently with bamboo sticks until the cloves drop. They are dried in the sun, being tossed about daily until they attain the rich dark color which preclaims them ready for shipment.

Cards and Their History.

Cards are square shaped pieces of pasteboard printed with various devices and employed as a business medium by money changers. They are usually made up in packs of fifty-two, one for each week of the year. A good many people play cards for pleasure, in which case their opponents are said to be buying experience. In most card games the rule is that the cards must be cut, but not otherwise marked. This rule is not strictly observed in games in which only three cards are used. Indeed, the marking of cards has attained a high degree of perfection since the introduction of numerous card index systems. Fashions change in card games as in everything else. Old maid, for instance, is nowadays seldom played in the best clubs. Playing cards should not be confused with score cards, which are rather larger, or with visiting cards, which are smaller.—Fry's Magazine.

A Rhineland Legend.

There is a Rhineland legend of three German robbers who, having acquired by various atrocities what amounted to a very valuable booty, agreed to divide the spoil and to retire from so dangerous a vocation. When the day appointed for this purpose arrived one of them was dispatched to a neighboring town to purchase provisions for their last carousal. The other two secretly agreed to murder him on his return that they might divide his share between them. They did so. But the murdered man was a closer calculator even than his assassins, for he had previously poisoned a part of the provisions, that he might appropriate to himself the whole of the spoil. This precious triumvirate were found dead together.

Salt Codfish Omelet.

Soak a piece of salt codfish about six inches square overnight. Split six crackers and lay them in cold water, just enough to cover them. In the morning pick the fish fine and mix well with the soaked crackers, three well beaten eggs and a piece of butter the size of an egg, also salt and pepper. Take one quart of milk and add to it one dessertspoonful of flour. Boil five minutes and pour over in the dish in which it is to be baked. Bake twenty minutes.—Boston Post.

Regatta in England.

The first regatta in England was in 1776, and it was imported into that country by Lady Mary Wortley Montagu, who had been impressed by the water show of Venice. There was no series of races. There was a procession of city barges to a "temporary octagon," where there was reveling that night and well into the next day. Only seven of the company were drowned on the return journey, which speaks well for the average sobriety of the crowd.—London King.

Breakfast Hours.

A traveler stopped at a hotel in Greenland, where the nights are six months long, and as he registered asked a question of the clerk. "What time do you have breakfast?" "From half past March to a quarter to May."—Harper's Weekly.

Boring the Bore.

"What do you do to get rid of bores?" "Just as soon as they come into my office I start in telling them of the latest cute thing my baby said."—Detroit Free Press.

But He Did.

Her Mother—I saw him kiss you! I am terribly shocked. I did not for a moment imagine he would dare take such a liberty. Himself—Nor did I, ma. In fact, I bet him a pair of gloves he didn't!

Certain About It.

Once upon a time, not so long ago, a couple of cowpunchers found themselves guests in the home of a minister of the gospel whose custom was to hold family worship of a morning and to conclude the same by asking each one present to give some quotation from the Scriptures. One after another repeated some text until at last it came the turn of Jim Bulstoke of the Crowfoot ranch.

"My dear young friend," said the dominie as he saw the latter hesitating, "surely can recall some verse from the Bible?" Jim's face was bathed with profuse perspiration, but at last there came to him some approximation of a memory of something he had read or heard at some stage of his life about the first chapter of Genesis. At last he broke out, "God made the world."

The dominie lifted a hand to hide a sudden smile, but bowed to Jim's neighbor in the circle. Carley was even worse off than Jim had been and for the life of him could not think of anything. At last, remembering the occasional virtue of a good bluff, he twisted one foot around his chair leg and, with all the confidence he could muster, remarked, "He shore did!"—Recreation.

Last English King in a Battle.

The battle of Dettingen, in Bavaria, on the 27th (O. S.) of June, 1743, between the British, Hanoverian and Hessian troops (52,000 men) under command of George II., and the French troops (80,000 men), under Marshal Noailles, which resulted in the victory of the allied troops, was the last occasion on which an English king fought on the battlefield. His majesty continued the whole time in the heat of all the action, which was said by those who witnessed it to have been as fierce a conflict as had ever been known.

On the morning of the battle the king appeared in the same red coat he had worn at Oudenarde, thirty-five years before, taking his place at the head of the seven battalions of guards. About noon he ordered a general advance, and during the movements it entailed he was very nearly taken by the enemy, but was rescued by the Twenty-second regiment, who, in remembrance, wore a sprig of oak in their caps upon the anniversary of the battle for many years afterward.—London Tit-Bits.

The Children of the Great.

There is a tendency for children of exceptional parents to regress toward the average stock. Galton terms this tendency filial regression. This, the London hospital points out, applies equally to exceptional physical and mental characters. Thus, though tall stature may run in certain families, yet there is always a tendency to revert to the mean average size. Similarly the children of a genius tend to have somewhat less than their father's power, but more than the average of the race. According to Professor Pearson, distinguished parents are just ten times more likely to have distinguished offspring than undistinguished parents. Still, such cases as the Darwins, father and sons; the Pitts, Philip and Alexander; the Greats are exceptional. Similarly also the children of a criminal tend to be less vicious than the father, though morally inferior to the average man.

Why He Was Unpopular.

When first made bishop of Stepney Dr. Winnington Ingram was anything but popular and indeed had occasionally to seek police protection. Greatly worried, the bishop tried to trace the cause and found one lady who was able to enlighten him. "It's your white shirt, sir," she said. "We don't want no white shirted gentry here. Try a gray shirt and a dickey, like our chaps wear on Sunday."

The Codex Sinaiticus.

The most ancient of the New Testament manuscripts is the one known as the "Codex Sinaiticus," published at the expense of Alexander II. of Russia since the Crimean war. This codex covers nearly the whole of the Old and New Testaments and was discovered in the Convent of St. Catherine on Mount Sinai by the celebrated Tischendorf. It is generally ascribed to the fourth century.—New York American.

Ham With Jelly.

Melt in a saucepan a large tablespoonful of butter and half a glass of currant or other acid jelly. Shake in a little pepper and when hot lay in four or five small thin slices of boiled, cold ham. Let it boil up once and serve quickly on toast.—Boston Post.

Too Much.

Doctor—Now, there is a very simple remedy for this—this—er—recurring thirst. Whenever you feel you want a whisky and soda, just eat an apple—eat an apple. Patient—But—er—fancy eating fifty or sixty apples a day!—London Punch.

The Eternal Motorist.

Mrs. Goslop—They do say that bar husband has acquired locomotor ataxia. Mrs. Parvenu—I don't think much of those cheap cars. My husband has an imported one.—Smart Set.

Household Hint.

To mark table linen—leave the baby and some jam alone at the table for five minutes.—Judge.

You cannot lead men into truth by tricks.—Aesop.

Old Man "Banknotes."

Speaking of the curious Manx bank-eg lore of the past, the Liverpool Post says that a singular state of affairs was exhibited in "the island" at the close of the Napoleonic wars. Trade was brisk, money was more freely advanced, and all sorts of private persons began to issue notes. There was no occasion whatever to have sterling against them. All you had to do was to get some one to take them and pass them on. The fashion grew till even the humblest traders issued card "promises to pay," the values most in circulation being 5 shillings, a shilling and even sixpence. Once an advocate from Castletown went to Peel to collect a judgment of £350 from the corner of Glenfaba. This worthy paid him 2704 card notes, many of them worthless. They took several hours to examine and count, and their transport was an item of extreme difficulty. Finally they were put into a big sack, half shaken to one end and half to the other, and the whole slung over the back of a horse. The lather of the horse, soaking through, spoiled nearly half the cards!

Clearing the Atmosphere.

In his capacity of dramatic critic Mr. J. Comyns Carr, the author, wrote a notice of the play of "Charles I.," in which Irving played under the management of Mr. Bateman. His production deeply incensed the manager. In order perhaps to find the opportunity of informing the critic of his disapproval, the manager invited him to a supper at the Westminster club on the second or third night of the production. When he thought the fitting moment had arrived Mr. Bateman led the conversation to the point at issue and, emphatically banging the table with his fist, declared in the loudest of tones that he did not produce his plays at the Lyceum theater to please Mr. Comyns Carr. There was a moment's awkward silence, which Mr. Carr confessed he did not feel quite able to break, but which was released by a wit of the company with the happy retort, "Well, dear boy, then you can't be surprised if they don't please him."

Sight Lost and Restored.

A farmer's wife who had had much trouble with her servants was accosted by one of them.

"I fear I shall not be able to work much longer. I think I am going blind."

"Why, how is that? You seem to get along pretty well with your work."

"Yes, but I can no longer see any meat on my plate at dinner."

The farmer's wife understood, and the next day the servants were served with very large and very thin pieces of meat.

"How nice!" the girl exclaimed. "My sight has come back. I can see better than ever."

"How is that, Bella?" asked the mistress.

"Why, at this moment," replied Bella. "I can see the plate through the meat!"—London Scraps.

His Passport.

On one occasion Gustave Dore, the artist, lost his passport while on a tour in Switzerland. At Lucerne he asked to be allowed to speak to the mayor, to whom he gave his name.

"You say that you are M. Gustave Dore, and I believe you," said the mayor, "but, and he produced a piece of paper and a pencil, "you can easily prove it."

Dore looked around him and saw some peasants selling potatoes in the street. With a few clever touches he reproduced the homely scene and, appending his name to the sketch, presented it to the mayor.

"Your passport is all right," remarked the official, "but you must allow me to keep it and to offer you in return one of the ordinary form."

Brutal Indifference.

"It seems since his marriage Jack Thornley has developed into a perfect brute."

"You surprise me! What has he done?"

"Why, the other night while his wife was regaling him with all the particulars of that choice Veritas scandal she noticed that he seemed very quiet. And what do you think? He was sound asleep!"—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

Nearing the Limit.

An old lady was going down in the cage in a Cornish mine. She looked with apprehension at the rope, and asked the miner anxiously: "My man, are you sure this rope is quite safe?" "Well, mum," was the cheerful answer, "these ropes is guaranteed to last exactly six months, and this ain't due to be renewed till tomorrow."—Birmingham Mail.

The Real Trouble.

"I'm afraid," said the lady to a diminutive applicant, "that you are too small to act as nursemaid to my children."

"Oh, I'm not too small," replied the applicant. "I guess the trouble is your children are too large."—Chicago News.

The Press Agent Proposes.

"Your pulchritude is peerless. You are an astounding aggregation of feminine faultlessness. Be mine!"

"Sure!" responded the girl. "I never could resist that press agent language."—Louisville Courier-Journal.

Return of the Prodigal.

"Who's that a-hollerin' down yander in the branch?"

"That's the prodigal son. The old man's a-wallin' thunder out o' him fer runnin' away!"—Atlanta Constitution.

There is no wisdom like frankness.—Beaumont.

The Greatest Wealth.

Is there any compensation in money for a starved, stunted, dwarfed mind? Can lands and houses, stocks and bonds, pay a man for living a narrow, rutty, sordid life? How much money would match the wealth of a trained mind, of unfolded possibilities? Is the capacity for the appreciation of the meaning of life, of the lessons of civilization, worth no more than one's bread and butter and roof? Can any one conceive of greater possessions than an intellect well trained and disciplined, than a broad, deep, full orbed mind responsive to all beauty, all good?—Orison Swett Marden in Success Magazine.

More Than Pleased.

"Did Miss Flavilla seem pleased when you asked her to go to the theater?"

"Pleased! She wanted to keep the tickets for fear something might happen to me."—Chicago Record-Herald.

THE HOME DAIRY.

Visiting North Glendale one day this week a reporter called at the Home Dairy on Oak street, just south of Kenneth Road, owned and managed by Mr. and Mrs. James Connor. Mr. and Mrs. Connor moved here about a year ago, not intending to go into the dairy business, although both have had many years' experience at it, but seeing an opportunity to supply families in their immediate neighborhood with milk, they gradually worked into their old business and now have fifteen cows and a growing patronage. A barn well stocked with hay and other feed indicates that the animals are well supplied with provender, a fact attested to by their contented appearance. Plans are made for sheds in which to feed and shelter the cows during the winter season and work is about to begin on them. A milk house has recently been completed in which are cold storage facilities as ice is used constantly in the handling of the milk and other side products of dairy and farm. Every precaution is taken to keep the product pure and the health of the cows is looked after by a veterinary who makes periodical visits. A recent acquisition is a pair of "Brown Swiss" cows of which Mrs. Connor is exuberantly proud—they have the appearance and characteristics of the Jerseys, but are somewhat larger and are said to produce a greater quantity of milk equal in quality to that of the latter breed.

BUILDING AND REAL ESTATE.

Sarah E. Toll, one-story residence, Mary street north of First, $2000.

Mr. Gridley, recently from Iowa, has plans for a fine residence on the corner of Brand and Milford street, to cost $5000 or more.

Mr. T. A. Wright will build a residence on a lot in the lemon grove (Knott) tract between Third and Fourth streets.

Mr. Osborne is putting up a house on the corner of Doran and Orange streets.

NOTICE TO PARENTS OF HIGH SCHOOL SCHOLARS.

Knowing the large element of danger always present in football games, the management of the Glendale Union High School wishes to use all possible influence in discouraging this game. We therefore do not give football any part in the athletics of our High School. We have no football team, and do not intend to have any; and, moreover, we use all our influence to discourage the young people from playing the game in teams outside of the High School organization. We wish the parents to know our attitude in this matter, for we believe the element of danger is too great for our boys to take the hazard.

SIXTH DISTRICT LIBRARY MEETING AT HOLLYWOOD.

That County Library Law.

The quarterly meeting of the Sixth District California Library Association was held at Hollywood on Friday, November 12th, at the fine Carnegie public library built in old English style.

The cordial greeting extended to arriving guests by Mrs. Eleanor B. Jones, the librarian, who graciously and efficiently presided as hostess, made all feel welcome.

The attentive library assistants conducted visitors through the building, which was enhanced by chaste floral decorations, so arranged as to give a spacious, commodious effect, while suitable appointments and works of art give the correct classic literary effect. The meeting was called to order by Miss Margaret Kyle, librarian at Riverside and president of the Sixth District, who responded briefly to the hospitable words of welcome expressed by D. C. Hampton, president of the Board of Trade, and R. C. Sommers, president of the Library Board.

The County Library Act, to provide county library systems, enacted by the last legislature, was the special feature which called together an unusually large representation of trustees and librarians. Among those of note in attendance were James L. Gillis, president of the State Library Association, and also State Librarian at Sacramento; General Beveridge, George Horton James, the author; Charles P. Lummis, Mrs. Harriet Meyer, secretary of the California Audubon Society; Miss Libby, State Library organizer; Miss Haines of Pasadena, Miss Russ, Librarian at Pasadena and also member of the State Library Executive Committee; Miss Ellis of Long Beach, Miss Humphries of Redlands, Miss Jacobus of Pomona and Miss Segmiller of Whittier. Glendale was represented by the librarian, Mrs. Danford, and Mesdames Witham and Wells, library trustees.

It was encouraging to note the generous amount appropriated for library purposes in most places; Whittier receives $4500 this year. Most library trustees reported that their city trustees gave them all they needed. The Glendale delegation, for the honor of the city, discretely remained silent upon this point.

Miss Gretchen Libby, school secretary of the California Audubon Society, of which David Starr Jordan is president, read an interesting paper, giving statistics and work accomplished by this society.

The main business of the day was presented by State President Gillis, who has done such praiseworthy work in supplying traveling libraries to remote places, who set forth convincingly the advantages of the recently enacted county library law. After reading this an animated discussion followed, in which Mr. Gillis was called upon to answer many questions and explain many points.

Judge Owens, in a legal, logical way pointed out many flaws in the law, and found "political bugs" which he averred did not get there unintentionally. He stated that it was the most poorly drawn law which had ever come under his observation. Mr. Gillis stated that no objection had been made to the law before and that he could not answer Judge Owens from a legal standpoint, but that if there were objectionable features, they could be corrected.

At the conclusion of the discussion a resolution was adopted expressing disapproval of the county library law until properly amended to eliminate objectionable features.

A second resolution was adopted expressing approval of a county library law correctly framed, and appreciation of Mr. Gillis' presence and interest in the matter.

Members and friends of the Library Association were guests, at luncheon, of the Hollywood Board of Trade and Hollywood Woman's Club. Through the courtesy of the Library Board of Trustees, the Woman's Club occupies beautiful rooms in the basement of the library building, where the club ladies, of whom the librarian is one, served in perfect style an elegant and aesthetically pleasing luncheon.

A rare feature of the day was a visit to the artist, Paul de Longpre, whose handsome home was opened to the library delegation and whose famous flower paintings, rivaling nature in beauty and perfection of detail, charming all, while rich tapestries, handsome bronzes, beautiful carvings and inlaid pieces and many choice works of art heightened the artistic effect of the delightful occasion.

Mr. A. J. Frankland, the well-known Los Angeles newspaper man, who has just completed the organization of an evening American newspaper in the city of Mexico, will return to Tropic sometime early in December. The pretty home on Boynton avenue is fully equipped and ready for the family. The Franklands left Tropic last June and have been touring through the Republic and collecting all sorts of antique curios, several pieces of old mahogany among them. In a recent letter Mr. Frankland states that living in the Republic is about 4 to 1. Americans cannot use the native products but must depend entirely on food from the United States, which in most cases is prohibited by the prices. A can of tomatoes costs 6c; Mexican currency, or 30c gold. An apple is 40c (Mexican currency), grapes are $1.50 kilo (2-15 lbs.), and scarce at that. Potatoes are high and of a very poor quality. The vegetables are absolutely insipid and tasteless. California fruits are in great demand and sold in every corner at enormous prices. No such thing as a "lazy" Mexican exists in this country. Even the native Indians are a hustling lot of people, never idle a moment, and as sharp as a Yankee. In all it is a wonderfully progressive country, clean streets, fine sewer system, good car service, elegant hotel and thousands of places of interest. Earthquakes are an every day occurrence, but no damage is ever done, as the city is built upon a soft, mushy dry lake bed, in fact water can be had four feet below the street. In case of fire where there are no water plugs handy the street is torn up and the fire hose pumps water from under the street in any quantity desired.

THE COUNTRY NEWSPAPER.

William J. Bryan pays the following tribute to the country newspaper:

"It can be owned by the editor who edits it, and therefore has behind it a conscience and character which can be identified, which is close to the people and can give voice to the sentiments of its readers. We have to depend more and more upon the country papers for an educational work that is necessary to a correct understanding of public questions. There is a lot of difference between a man who writes what he is told to write and a man who writes what he believes is a message to his readers. At this time, when the great dailies are becoming more and more business enterprises rather than exponents of opinion and especially when a number of them have become the property of predatory interests, the country newspaper increases in importance."

THURSDAY AFTERNOON CLUB.

Assisted by Miss Cecelia Harris and Miss Maud Moore, Miss Harriet Myers very ably entertained the Thursday Afternoon Club at her home on Central avenue. The topic for the afternoon was "California Literature," and the program was opened by a vocal solo by Miss Moore, after which different papers were read, relating the lives and works of the prominent California authors. Also extracts from a paper by Mrs. Robert Burdette were given, mentioning a great many less prominent writers, which gave a better idea of the literary standing of the State. The ladies find that these afternoons are not only very entertaining, but a very instructive and edifying way of spending their time. After the usual social hour, light refreshments were served.

TREE INSPECTOR HEREABOUTS.

Mr. Jones, of Highland Park, an inspector in the employ of the horticultural commission, spent several days in Glendale and vicinity last week, inspecting trees in this section. Having some acquaintance with the gentleman we have reason to believe that he will do effective and honest work. He states that it is his policy to serve potiches where trees need attention and let the owners employ whoever they please to do the work, provided that it is done well.

The Glendale Market is glistening with a brand new coat of white paint; a linoleum carpet covers the floor, new furniture has been put in and everything about that popular establishment has a rejuvenated and up-to-date appearance. The next thing to be added is machinery for sausage making which will be in place in a few days. It is the declared intention of Messrs. Whaley and Fish to keep on hand everything in their line that a fastidious public may demand.

CHANGE OF DATE.

The Parent-Teachers' Association of the Fourth street grammar school will hold its regular monthly meeting on Wednesday, Nov. 24, 2:30 p. m., at the school house, instead of on Friday. A Thanksgiving program will be given, also an address by Mrs. Chalmers Smith, president of the Mothers' Congress. All mothers and any others interested are cordially invited.

MRS. R. A. BLACKBURN, Pres.

BRAND BOULEVARD CONVEYED TO COUNTY AND CITY.

At the time he made transfer of the electric light plant of the Glendale Light & Power Co., Mr. L. C. Brand also conveyed to the city of Glendale and the county of Los Angeles, his title to Brand Boulevard, which has heretofore been merely a private right of way. This puts that thoroughfare now on a basis of equality with the other streets of the city.

NEW OIL BURNER.

Messrs. Wells and Young of Tropic are just putting on the market an oil burner, the invention of Mr. Wells, which is said to be the best thing of the kind yet offered to housekeepers. They extend to everybody an invitation to visit Mr. Young's residence on San Fernando road, just west of the Griswold pumping plant and see it in operation.

BIRTHDAY CELEBRATION.

The Tuesday Afternoon Club will celebrate its first charter birthday at the regular meeting next Tuesday, Nov. 23d. The civic committee will have charge of the program which will include a report of the convention at Pasadena, an outline of the Glendale chamber of commerce exhibit for April 3d, 1910, and other interesting things befitting the occasion.
